SCHOFIELD DUST.

The Scholleld dust's more dusty Than any other dust: The darned old stiff's more rusty Than real red iron rust.

It meets you in the morn no When you scramble out of bed. By noon it makes you surty. By night, your hair is red.

Your vision's always hazy. Your eyes are filled with dust: Your mouth full drives you crazy. You think you'll surely bust.

Complexions soon are copper, Dispositions disappear, Your clothes are never proper And the water looks like beer.

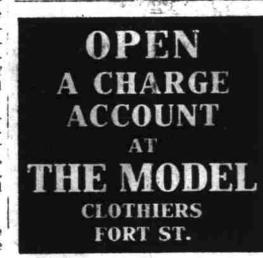

It pours down rain on Sunday, Relief has come at last! Cut lo! along comes Monday And dust blows thick and fast.
